

MST and Accutome Announce Merger

May 18, 2017

Redmond, WA – Halma Medical Sector, parent company of MST, Accutome, and Keeler, has reorganized the three ophthalmic companies into two stronger and more focused groups. MST, a leader in ophthalmic surgical devices, will absorb and manage the Accutome surgical line. The Keeler Group, a world leader in ophthalmic diagnostic platforms, will manage the Accutome clinical and diagnostic lines.

MST and Accutome surgical will each maintain their perspective names, brands, and focuses. MST will continue to provide the highest level of innovation, product quality, and customer service, and looks to make those services even better with the addition of Accutome.

IMPORTANT NOTE TO ALL CUSTOMERS: Until further notice, there will be NO CHANGE to the MST and Accutome contact people, telephone numbers, email, or websites. Until further notice, please continue to place orders in the same manner as you have in the past. We will contact all customers well in advance if there is any change to our contact information or order placement methodology.

The newly combined operations will be beneficial to MST customers and employees worldwide. The broadened capabilities of the MST group expand upon a vision of providing great products that people love.

About MST

MST is a market leader in the design, manufacturing, and distribution of specialty ophthalmic surgical products that help our customers meet the needs of their patients. The company is based in Redmond, Washington.